

LIFE INSPIRED PHOTOGRAPHY

For Priya Chhabra, her photography goes beyond the flash or klieg lights. She shoots only in natural light and that not just adds an extra sheen to the frames but also helps let her subjects relax, particularly newborns and children. Yes, the Chennai-born photographer specializes in what she calls 'life inspired maternity, new born, child and family portraiture.'

Presently based in Delhi, where she moved to after her marriage, Priya discovered her real calling after she became a mother for the second time. Though she always had an inclination towards creativity – she is also a Fine Arts graduate from Stella Maris College – it was after photographing her children she realized where her passion was in.

About two and a half years back she launched herself as a professional photographer. As she says, "My cosy home studio offers professional, boutique maternity, newborn and family photography both indoor and outdoor with a relaxing, calm and friendly environment for you and your new baby. No session is ever rushed."

After her graduation, Priya went to the Loyola Institute for Business Administration and went on to work in marketing, public relations and so on. She was in the zenith of a career, having seen start-ups and businesses when she took a break. Now that her children are 13 and seven-years-old and her husband has his own entrepreneurial venture, she involves herself fully into her profession.

She is very meticulous about her work. Be it the preparation for the
